A Watford F.C. super fan, who sadly lost his battle with cancer in September 2010, will be honoured at a unique charity ball to be held at Vicarage Road.

Steve Brister was diagnosed with prostate cancer in 2008 which unfortunately metastasised to his brain in 2010. He fought a courageous battle every step of the way, including raising over £10,000 in his final weeks for BT Buddies, a charity very close to his heart.

The Yellow Ball has been organised by Steve's widow, Jackie, and the founder of Brain Tumour (BT) Buddies, Natalya Jagger. It will be held on Saturday 22nd September 2012 at the club's Vicarage Road ground and will see guests, including some Watford F.C. players, dressed in Yellow Tie and ball gowns.

Natalya said "I got to know Steve personally through my charity Brain Tumour (BT) Buddies and it's great to be able to do something to honour such an amazing man as we come up to the second anniversary of his passing".

Tickets for the event cost £30 per person and include a sparkling drinks reception, 3 course dinner and entertainment. There will also be a raffle and auction of great autographed Watford F.C. items, on the night.
